It was an awesome Easter weekend at the Rescue Mission. Thanks to the help of a small army of volunteers, we were able to take over Pioneer Park downtown and hold our annual Easter Banquet and Easter Egg Hunt for our homeless friends.

Besides toys, games, face painting and eggs for the kids, there was a great brunch with ham, fresh fruit, pancakes and more. We served over a thousand meals and gave away thousands of pieces of clothing, making sure everyone received what they needed. Of course, all of this outreach was reinforced with Gospel messages, words of encouragement and songs of hope from several local churches. Our goal was to “Celebrate LIFE,” both our physical life and our spiritual life that God makes possible through the resurrection of Jesus. We also wanted to bless and encourage homeless kids and adults who might otherwise be discouraged during the Easter weekend. Every man, woman and child should have the opportunity to celebrate the life, death and resurrection of Jesus!

Our banquet meals, and every meal we serve, are opportunities for the Mission and its volunteers to give back to a hurting community. We thank everyone who prayed for good weather, gave financially and volunteered to make this Easter Banquet happen. Special Thanks goes to Canyons Church, Calvary Chapel of Salt Lake, Grace Community Bible Church, Greenhouse Community Church, First Presbyterian, The Bridge Community Church, and the Tate Family.

Thank you for partnering with the Rescue Mission to provide services to the homeless and addicted people of Utah, offering a hand up instead of a handout!

BETTEJEAN JENTZSCH: A relationship with God is not a fairy tale

My name is Bettejean Jentzsch and when I came to the Rescue Mission in October of 2014, I didn't believe in God. Even though I was baptized at eight years old, a lifetime of pain and abuse had convinced me that God was just a fairy tale invented to scare little children.

But after being at the Rescue Mission for a couple of weeks, my heart and mind changed. I came to know that God was real, a fact that has made all the difference in my life. Today, I have been sober for 18 months. I have a good job as an accountant at a print shop here in Salt Lake. I wear nice clothes and feel like a real professional. I have good relationships with both my sons and keep telling them that I need grandkids. My biological clock is ticking, even if theirs isn't!

I also have a great relationship with my community mentor, who goes to the same church I do—Capital Church—just east of downtown. We meet once a week and talk about our joys, fears, struggles, and about God. And that is the biggest change in my life. I know about God now.

Now I know that God exists and that all He wants is to take care of me and love me. I first realized this when I went to a revival service at Calvary Baptist church, just down the street from the Rescue Mission’s Women’s Center. I was leery of these kinds of events and really considered not coming to the Rescue Mission because of its focus on faith. But at this revival service God showed me He was real and He was loving.

Once I knew God was real, I began to learn more about Him. The biggest revelation I had was about sin. Previously, I thought of religion as overly restrictive. I felt like religion just kept you from doing all the fun things that you wanted to do. But God and my Rescue Mission counselors challenged me to think differently about my sin. What I realized is that alcohol abuse was destroying my life. What I thought was a fun choice—whether I could drink away my problems or not—was actually a burden, making me miserable and destroying my life.

Why Can’t I Believe That God Loves Me?

A few days ago, a friend was sitting in my office, telling me about his recent return to homelessness. As we talked, he burst into tears, reached his hands out and slapped at the air, asking, “Why can’t I believe that God loves me and that the Rescue Mission really cares?”

Now that’s a real question!

My friend has worked in construction and landscaping. He has lapsed into homelessness at times, especially during the winter or when he could not find work. His struggle with addiction has not helped either. He told me how he lived with his parents this past winter and tried to find employment. Unfortunately, his parents also struggle with addiction and living with them proved to be destructive. He faced the realization that he cannot fall back on his parents anymore.

But he was thankful to have the Rescue Mission to fall back on. He shared how good it was to be back in Bible studies and fellowship with people who really love him. So his question about unbelief came from a real place of heartache and desire for God.

It is hard for a person who does not know God or understand unconditional love to believe that God loves him. Why is this so difficult? Looking at the life of Jesus can provide some answers.

My life of abuse and problems reached a boiling point about 12 years ago in Las Vegas. I really hadn’t drank or used drugs much in my life. I was married and working as an accountant. But my marriage grew more and more abusive and I ended up in the hospital several times. My husband and I started drinking together and ultimately we decided that we couldn’t live peacefully anymore. I moved into an apartment by myself and started drinking every day. This went on for years and my alcoholism grew worse. I finally lost my job and went on unemployment.

I was so depressed that I would literally sit in my apartment all day, many days not even stepping outside.

This abuse, I believe, led me to seek out abusive relationships as I grew older. I have never been in a relationship that wasn’t physically abusive.

But my marriage grew more and more abusive and I ended up in the hospital several times. My husband and I started drinking together and ultimately we decided that we couldn’t live peacefully anymore. I moved into an apartment by myself and started drinking every day. This went on for years and my alcoholism grew worse. I finally lost my job and went on unemployment.

I was so depressed that I would literally sit in my apartment all day, many days not even stepping outside. I used my unemployment checks to buy alcohol and did nothing but drink, sleep and cover in my apartment. I was slowly dying. My youngest son really saved me and I believe now that God sent him to help me. Both my sons live here in Salt Lake, and one of the few friends I still had in Las Vegas contacted my youngest son and described my situation. My son came to Las Vegas, rented a truck, packed me up and brought me to Utah. I got sober, found a job and leased an apartment, but it didn’t last. Within a few months I started drinking again and lost my job and my apartment. My son took me down to the alcohol detox center and, after spending three days there, I started looking for somewhere to go. It was the first time I had ever been without a home.

That’s when I found the Rescue Mission and they took me in, despite my antagonism towards God at the time. Looking back, I am amazed at how God has blessed me and rescued me.

One of the coolest things God did for me was to find me a great job. However, He sure taught me some lessons about trust before He supplied me with this perfect position. It was last July when I started looking for work. I had been sober for 10 months and everyone, myself included, felt like I was stable enough to start working again. July passed and nobody called back, then August and September went by. I had a good resume that attracted interviews, but nobody hired me. It wasn’t until February of this year that someone took a chance on me. A company needed someone who knew how to run this somewhat obscure software that they used for bookkeeping. It just happened that this software was the exact same program I used for 12 years when I was an accountant in Vegas. They hired me right away.

During the eight months I was looking for work, I felt defeated, dejected and often wondered if I should quit the New Life Program. All I had was trust in God, encouragement from the staff and a belief that God wanted me to keep at it. I had to trust that God would ultimately supply my needs. I had to cling to that trust through my self-doubt and I have come out with a greater trust and belief in God than I ever had before.

I praise God for saving me and changing me. I look forward to enjoying life in my relationships with my two sons. I thank God that I have a good job, have over 18 months of sobriety, am free from the pain of abusive relationships and am looking for my own apartment. Most of all, I praise God that I have a relationship with Him based upon His love and desire for me. I don’t want anything more than to experience His love, and I look forward to what God has in store for me. Please keep me in your prayers as I look for an apartment and graduate from the New Life Program. Thank you for supporting the Rescue Mission and helping to change my life!
